The School of International Studies (SIS) and the Centre for European Policy Studies (CEPS) present the first SIS/CEPS Annual Lecture

The humanitarian-development-peace nexus: lessons from the Sahel and the Lake Chad Basin

Tuesday 12 December 2017, 14.15-16.00
Room 112, School of International Studies, Department of Humanities via Tommaso Gar, 14 - Trento

Speaker:
Giovanni Faleg
Associate Research Fellow, Centre for European Policy Studies

Chair:
Sara Lorenzini
School of International Studies

The lecture focuses on international approaches to address fragility, conflict and violence in developing countries. It analyzes the concept of “humanitarian-development-peace nexus”, and its implementation in two conflict regions in West Africa: the Sahel and the Lake Chad Basin. Dr. Faleg will focus on the international community’s efforts to achieve stabilization, early recovery and resilience in Mali and North East Nigeria, while coping with the threat posed by violent extremism, namely Al-Qaeda affiliates and Boko Haram. Conclusions will outline practical recommendations for the EU to effectively support the nexus, striking a balance between the need to devise country-specific solutions and invest in a regional approach, with the ultimate goal of giving people, especially new generations, the help they deserve.
