SOCIAL EUROPE: IRRELEVANT, CATCHING-UP, OR DANGEROUS?

Amandine Crespy is Associate Professor of Political Science at the Université Libre de Bruxelles (ULB) where she is affiliated with the Institut d’Etudes Européennes (IEE) and serves as the vice-director of the Centre d'études de la vie politique (Cevipol). She is also Visiting Professor at the College of Europe (Bruges). Her research deals with the political contention surrounding EU integration and socio-economic policies. She co-edited Social Policy and the Eurocrisis (2015, Palgrave) and Governance and Politics in the Post-Crisis European Union (2020, Cambridge University Press). She is the author of Welfare Markets in Europe. The democratic challenge of European Integration (Palgrave, 2016), L’Europe sociale. Acteurs, politiques, débats (2019, Presses de l’Université de Bruxelles) and The European Social Question. Tackling key controversies (2021, Agenda).

For further information please visit https://webmagazine.unitn.it/en/evento/ssi/89389/social-europe-irrelevant-catching-up-or-dangerous
School of International Studies www.sis.unitn.it; events@sis.unitn.it